BOCA RATON

The Junior League of Boca Raton (JLBR) has filled a third airplane with donated diapers and food bound for Puerto Rico. Partnering with Puerto Rico Relief Flight, a grass-roots organization based in West Palm Beach, JLBR was able to send 3,720 diapers, 2,006 baby wipes, 105 cans of sunscreen and 582 pounds of food to the island to benefit victims of Hurricane Maria. This recent donation is in addition to the approximately 3,000 adult diapers, 172,800 baby wipes, and 32,000 baby diapers JLBR sent previously on a private plane coordinated with assistance from the Junior League of the Palm Beaches, and a Goodwill cargo plane arranged by The United Way. "This was a tremendous opportunity for our Diaper Bank to assist those in dire need," said JLBR President Renata Sans de Negri.

The JLBR Diaper Bank is the only diaper bank in Palm Beach and Broward Counties. The bank currently distributes approximately 140,000 diapers every other month to local nonprofit agencies, and diapers well over 800 babies per month. Year-round diaper drives, as well as generous private donors, have enabled the JLBR Diaper Bank to act quickly in aiding victims of the recent devastating hurricanes. In addition to sending aid to Puerto Rico, the JLBR Diaper Bank also provided 2,000 diapers to the Florida Keys and members delivered 1,000 diapers to Belle Glades in northern Palm Beach County this past week. Families in both areas were hit particularly hard with hurricane expenses in the aftermath of Hurricane Irma.

While the JLBR Diaper Bank operates primarily in southern Palm Beach and Broward Counties, members saw an opportunity to help those in desperate need outside these immediate areas. "It was a great experience! The opportunity to explore other parts of our service area are trips well taken, and time well spent," said JLBR Managing Director Meghan Shea, who delivered diapers to Belle Glades.
